RELIEVED OF CATARRH

And Stomach Trouble Declares Alderice
Dore of Holyoke and Gives Praise and Endorsement to Tanlac

In this modern age the time seems past that we, in our present mode of living, accompanied with our various simple ailments and sometimes serious ones, too, that we pass up the ancient and nauseous decoctions of that age. We shudder at the thought of taking these nauseous compounds, and in consequence suffer more or less complainingly. Today this need not be the case as science has advanced greatly in recent years. Foremost among advanced medicines we have Tanlac, The National Tonic, the restorer of rundown constitutions, builder of weakened nervous force, antiseptic and corrective of stomach ailments, regulator of the bowels and a general system rejuvenator, that brings to us many testimonials from grateful and contented people like the following from Mr. Alderice Dore a toolmaker living at 44 Cabot street, Holyoke, Mass.

"I suffered from loss of appetite and was unable to eat anything when I got up in the morning. I would suffer from pains in my stomach all day, and did not have any ambition. I also suffered from catarrh very badly.

"I saw Tanlac advertised and decided to buy some of it. I have now taken three bottles and am feeling very much better in every way.

"I am now glad to recommend Tanlac and would advise anyone suffering, as I did to try it."

Tanlac is claimed by people who have used it to go straight to the seat of stomach, liver, nervous and catarrhal troubles.

Tanlac is now sold in Brattleboro at the Brooks House Pharmacy and can also be obtained in all neighboring cities and towns at the Tanlac stores.—Adv.

ALCOHOL EXPECTED TO OUST GASOLINE

Chemists in Session in New York Told of Its Cheap Production for Motor Use.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—At the conference on industrial alcohol, acetone and acetic acid at the Chemists club, which was one of the features yesterday of the fourth day of the chemical convention, scientists predicted generally that denatured alcohol would take the place of gasoline as motive power of the future.

"There is no longer any question of the commercial success in the manufacture of alcohol for automobiles," said Arthur D. Little of Boston, an expert on wood waste, who is chemical counsel for the Canadian Pacific railroad. "Experiments have shown that alcohol can be manufactured for as low as 25 cents a gallon, and at that price it will undoubtedly be preferable to gasoline."

"Alcohol is cleaner than gasoline, will not explode nor catch fire, and will develop practically as much horse-power. The decrease in cost has come through improved methods in its manufacture from wood waste, from waste sulphite liquor and from molasses."

Arthur H. Comey, superintendent of the Eastern laboratory of the Du Pont Powder company, which is rated with the best establishments in Germany, sent a message that "the manufacture of alcohol from sawdust is a commercial success and will grow accordingly."

Mention was made at the conference of a substance which is being developed for movie films. It is non-inflammable and waterproof and is known as cellulose acetate. Dr. Charles L. Parsons, chief chemist of the United States Bureau of Mines, told how America can be independent of foreign material for the cinema and porcelain ware industry through a new system of purifying secondary kaolin found in South Carolina and Georgia.

ARRIVES IN BROCKTON.

World's Costliest Holstein Bull of Aristocratic Lineage.

King Segis Pontiac Konigen, said to be the most costly Holstein bull in the world, recently purchased by Fred E. Field, arrived Wednesday in Brockton, Mass., from Alexander, N. Y., and was taken to the Field estate.

Mr. Field expects to develop a strain of Holstein cattle that will yield regularly at least 700 pounds of milk and 25 pounds of butter weekly. The bull's mother made a record last June of 40 pounds of butter and more than 825 pounds of milk in one week.

The sire of King Konigen is King Segis Pontiac, famous for having sired the largest number of high-priced animals in the world. Theodore N. Vail, president of the American Bell Telephone company, is said to be the nearest rival to Mr. Field as a cattle fancier, but Mr. Vail's interest is chiefly in Guernseys and Jerseys, while Mr. Field's is exclusively in Holsteins.

INSTALLATION IN CHURCH.

Prof. John Winthrop Platner, D. D., of Andover Theological seminary, Cambridge, Mass., preached a forceful sermon from Rev. 3:8: "I have set before thee an open door." He said there was set before this church and pastor an open door of opportunity.

Nothing is impossible to a loyal church and a faithful pastor, but certain essential qualifications are needed if they are to do effective and enduring work. The work before them is a work for eternity, not the building of an external institution. If we see clearly our task we are building a fabric of character and moulding a force which is spiritual.

Four qualifications are needed in essaying this work, and first he mentioned sound knowledge. We know many things and are fortunate if we know any of them well. A right understanding of the Bible is essential to Protestantism. We can never live without the pursuit of sound religious knowledge that will stand the test of modern religious inquiry. Artistic sensibility is another qualification. The noblest life is constantly exerting on the lives of others its ideals and ambitions. The better we know Christ the more his standards lay hold on us. Moral purpose and vital religious life and two other qualifications. The church exists for the union of these great departments of life.

Rev. Dr. Pratt offered the installing prayer, in which he gave thanks for the life and faithful service and devotion of Rev. Mr. Clapp and asked that the blessing of God might rest upon the pastor and people as co-laborers and that the ministry of this church in this community might be an uplifting ministry.

Rev. Howard A. Lincoln of Rochester (Vt.), a classmate of Rev. Mr. Clapp at Andover, gave the charge to the pastor. He brought suggestions out of his own experience. A minister as he stands in the pulpit reflects the highest ideals of living, he said. Let him be careful that in his own life he carries out those ideals as far as possible.

The charge to the church was given by Rev. Mr. Houghton, who said that after a pastorate of seven years here he could ask nothing better of the church for the new pastor than that it give him the same loyalty, hearty cooperation and goodwill that it had given in the past seven years. The minister should be the leader in all departments of church work, and experience has shown that even the business management cannot be left to the business men of the church, but the minister's principal work is in the pulpit and ministering to the intellectual life of his people and the people should co-operate to make the other tasks as easy as possible.

The right hand of fellowship was extended by Rev. Mr. Chapin, who by reason of temperament and as the dean of the county ministers was the fitting choice for this part of the program. He reminded Rev. Mr. Clapp that the latter succeeded a noble company of men who had filled the pulpit of this church and who had the art of reaching out into the county and cheering the hearts of the people there. You hold a commanding place in the state of Vermont, he said, and you are expected to bear the image of Christ as your bear his message. Do not undertake the work in your own strength. Remember that "My grace is sufficient for you."

Rev. Mr. Clapp offered the closing prayer and the benediction, and the auspicious occasion closed with a postlude, Magnificat in B flat, by Claussman, rendered by the organist.

market. Both Small and his wife were about 50 years of age.

Mr. Small gained some notoriety a few years ago when he sued A. H. Soden, one of the three owners of the Boston National baseball club, alleging that the latter had alienated the affections of his first wife. Many of the details were never made public but after two years Small was awarded damages of $10,000. The Mrs. Small, who is believed to have been murdered, was a second wife. She was 37 and he was 49. George C. Connor, the agent who wrote Small's life insurance policy, accompanied him to Boston last night by train.

About 10 o'clock last night persons in the village saw fire near the shore of the lake, but when they arrived the cottage was in flames. One told the police that through the fire he had seen the body of Mrs. Small, which appeared to be tied to a bedpost.

Later the body was found in the basement. It was fully clothed and a nightgown was wrapped around the head. Connor said today that he accompanied Small to Boston in the hope of writing some insurance for friends of his companion. They attended a theater and upon their return to their hotel received first news of the fire and Mrs. Small's probable death.
